BOOSTING THE FAIR

Nine cars containing boosters from Longview, accompanied by a brass band, arrived in Marshall Wednesday afternoon at about 3 o'clock. They were greeted at the courthouse square by a considerable crowd of ladies and gentlemen, who found their friends among the visitors and made things pleasant for them. It was 3:30 when the crowd was called over to the city hall-and-the-speaking began. There were addresses of welcome and responses, in which the mission of the Longview folks, the earnest invitation to attend their fair, was set forth and Marshall folks agreeing to go provided Longview folks would pay the Marshall fair a visit next year.

CRUZE STATES HE HAS GAINED FLESH

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 20.—"I had such a bad taste in my mouth almost all the time that the food I ate did not taste good. I have suffered from biliousness for some time and have also been troubled with my kidneys and toms were very bad and was alarmed about my condition. I scarcely rested day and night and would get up in the morning feeling drowsy, sluggish and stuffy, dull," began Mr. W. F. Cruze, a conductor on the Dallas Street Railway.

Continuing, Mr. Cruze said: "I have taken two bottles of Tanlac and a few of the Tanlac Laxative Tablets and I am glad to state that your medicine has done the work. I can now get a good night's rest, my tongue is clean and the bad taste has left my mouth. Tanlac has helped my kidneys wonderfully, has given me a splendid appetite, and I have gained in flesh. My breathing seems to be freer than ever before and I feel just like a new person. Of course, I am glad to recommend Tanlac to others for it has helped me more than I can explain."

Mr. Cruze lives at 928 Dale street, and has lived in Dallas four years.

Tanlac will continue to be explained at The Matthewson Drug Co.

"LEADING GROCER"

WONDERFUL PEARS GROWN AT GROVER

J. T. Bassett of Grover, if not forgrower of the largest, then certainly is the next largest pears produced in Harrison county; has two four-year old trees of the Leconte variety in his yard that are now in their second year of fruitage and for size, quality and quantity of fruit are out of the ordinary. Two choice specimens which he left with The Messenger weigh exactly 2 1-2 pounds and each measure 12 1-2 inches in circumference. One of these trees, he says produced an even two dozen pears upon straight body limb while the other had 22 pears. Both trees were well fruited on all hanging limbs or branches. During the course of conversation Mr. Bassett stated the farmers of Grover, most all of whom have for years been butter makers, were much enthused over the new creamery and that with this inducement they intended going into the milk industry upon a larger scale as they believed the establishment at that creamery was or would be the best thing Marshall had ever done for the farmers of Harrison county.

by my kidneys. The pains through my back were so severe, I could not attend to my household duties. A physician said I couldn't be cured. My kidneys were in a real bad condition and my general health was much run down, in fact I was a total wreck. I got Doan's Kidney Pills and soon had an appetite, could eat anything and my kidneys were regulated. Mrs. Blalock delberg and Mrs. Moore, served brick ice cream and cake, in the official colors, red and white.

ELK FRIDAY.

NEGRO FARMERS HAVE BRASS BAND

Few people in Marshall, if any at all, know that Harrison county can boast of a fully equipped and uniformed brass band. Such is the fact however, and what may be more surprising is that it is an organization of negro farmer musicians, there being only one town negro in the roster of 25 players. Garfield Crawford, an employee of the T. & P. shops, is the town negro and also the leader. Dock C. Campbell, a negro farmer, is the president, and S. H. Greens, at whose house four miles northwest of Marshall the band makes its headquarters is the secretary. The organization is now two years old, owns 30 good instruments and, as stated, is fully uniformed and organized to appear with all the pomp and heraldry upon festal occasions. So far have they progressed towards perfection that they have made application for—entry in the band prize contest at the Dallas fair. Should they succeed in this same they believed the establishment at that creamery was or would be the best thing Marshall had ever done for the farmers of Harrison county.

TELEPHONE PROMISES

As per promise of Mr. J. E. Farnsworth, vice president of the Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Company, in conference with the City Commission last Monday, to confirm by letter certain statements and promises made in reference to the future conduct of their business in Marshall, Mayor Wilson received the following from Mr. Farnsworth Thursday morning:

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 21, 1915.

Hon. H. O. Wilson,
Mayor City of Marshall, Texas.

Dear Sir—Confirming that which I stated to you and the commissioners yesterday.

This company is not demanding that either its local or long distance service be paid for in advance. We make no attempt to collect for our long distance service until the close of the month. The manner in which we are handling our collections covering the local service in your city, is as follows:

We bill all subscribers on the first of each month, for that month's service in advance. We are earnestly requesting that the service be paid for as early a date during the month as convenient, but in any case by the end of the month. In the event a subscriber does not pay by the end of the month, we renew our efforts by collecting in the 15th or 16th following month. On the 15th of the following month, in a courteously worded notice, we notify the subscriber that if the bill is not paid by the 25th of the month we shall be compelled to discontinue his service. On the 25th of the month if the bill has not been paid, we then deny the subscriber further outward service but allow him to receive inward calls. After a few days, if he then has not paid his bill, service is discontinued and the telephone removed.

You will see from the above that we are allowing our subscribers fifty-five days to settle before discontinuing the telephone or taking steps to remove same, and after fifty-five days, service is not provides the telephone may be reinstated if the subscriber pays in advance for the remaining five or six days of the month. We pay our help, rent and buy and our bills on the first of the month and we feel it is but proper that as far as we can induce our subscribers to do so, they should pay us by that time, considering the fact that we are compelled to furnish service to everyone.

The company will immediately open an office on the ground floor of some building in the business section of the city where our subscribers may pay their bills without climbing a stairway.

We regret we felt it necessary to dispense with the services of Mr. J. E. Haynes. We will carefully consider as to whether we can find employment for him elsewhere in our employ.

I confirm that which I stated to you as to the intent of the company in having its own building in your city, and the placing of its wires underground in the business section. When the financial skies have cleared and in common with others, we find it possible to make investments, we shall buy a lot in your city and within a reasonable time thereafter erect upon it a first-class fire-proof building. From this building we shall place our wires underground throughout the business section of the city.

In conclusion, I think it is unnecessary for me to reiterate to you that which I stated yesterday—that it is not the policy of The Southwestern Telegraph & Telephone Company to deal in an arbitrary manner with its patrons. We are not instituting any rules as to our business in Marshall that we have not in effect throughout the state at exchanges of large or larger than Marshall. We know it to be a fact that a great proportion of the business men prefer to pay their accounts by check rather than be annoyed by the visits of a collector. Again, we know that a very large proportion of the people prefer to drop into our office some time during the month and pay their bills, rather than be annoyed by the visits of a collector, who often calls at inconvenient times.

We shall pursue both as to method, as we shall pursue both as to affairs in a general way, you will find our patrons in your city satisfied with our business dealings.

Yours very truly,
J. E. FARNSWORTH,
Vice President.

SID COLEMAN'S DISCOVERY

Sid Coleman has lot recently come out of the west. He went west to visit and while there like a good many other people, made a discovery. He found that the people of Abilene have a craving, nature's kind, for a lottery, and our dear Uncle Sam-uel says lotteries are all right to gamble, but this kind of a lottery is worse than playing bridge for clay pipes, shooting gold balls across the lawn for cigars or playing marbles for keep. They have a business club out there, and one that seems to be financially and morally supported by the merchants of the town, who are anxious and eager for more trade that they may buy more goods to offer for sale upon which to make more profit whereby in due course of time they can retire, get the gout and pass away in misery. At any rate they support the club by joining any movement that is for the upbuilding of the mercantile trade of the city. One of these schemes includes the giving away of a Ford automobile every once in a while, now once a month. The various merchants lay aside one per cent of their cash sales and place it in a common fund for the buying of an automobile. When the fund is big enough the machine is purchased, and is given away in a drawing. With cash purchases numbered—itemized—given receipts corresponding to other numbers that are placed in the box and drawn out by a blindfolded child. A very essential feature of the scheme for its success is that the holder of the ticket must be present at the drawing, the date and hour of which are widely advertised. Sid says that people will travel fifty or even one hundred miles if he thought he could win a Ford automobile. Every Saturday men come to town do some buying one trading around while waiting for the hour of the drawing, and at the number they hold is drawn and they are not present the drawing continues until one is brought forth that is held by somebody in the crowd.

The child says this scheme has worked wonderfully well out there, so well, indeed, that instead of being compelled-to-wait-until-the-Sabbath accumulated, they have money ahead for the next drawing. This as will be seen, has been produced by the wonderful increase in the cash trade of the town. Of course, the merchants are with one another in seeking to draw customers to their particular stores by resorting to clever and catchy advertising in the newspapers, but the crowd gets into town in larger and larger numbers by reason of these drawings.

How the citizens manage to get around Uncle Sam's lottery laws is not known. Of course, a lottery can be conducted, but the mails cannot be used to advertise it. And lotteries, when conducted honestly, are no different from the average run of drawing. The trouble with the big lotteries, which Uncle Sam put out of business, was that they were not square.

John D. Rockefeller jr. is doing what would have saved him a lot of money and trouble a few years ago. He is associating with the miners who work for him in Colorado, and trying to learn first hand and by intimate contact their manner of living and why conditions are as they are. No matter how graphically a man may write, he impresses no two readers alike. They do not get the same ideas from what he intends to convey. Hence, there is nothing like making a personal investigation of conditions that are of such moment as these. Mr. Rockefeller is doing the very right thing, and it is hoped that he may never, as long as he lives and has control out there, hear anything more of Colorado mine troubles.

—MESSENGER—

The trend of affairs in the European war indicates that the great battle ground is going to be in the vicinity of the Black sea. While other armies are scattered all along the German and Austrian fronts, the most spectacular fighting is now toward the southeast of those countries, and with the entrance of the Italian states and Greece into the war, together with the fighting that is going on in the Dardanelles, it seems likely that the vast armies will gradually drift in the direction stated. There will come the battle Armageddon.

A Berlin Associated Press dispatch says that the railroad companies passenger lines to escape rather than set in case of floods and make it certain that they will not be caught by the festivities made by the United States, and it is once more shown that Germany underestimates the unpopularity which the Wilson administration has been contending. The weak feature about it is that this statement does not come through the regular official channels.

If Great Britain and France can borrow a billion dollars in the United States with no more security than their faces, the people of Marshall should be able to borrow a loan of $100,000 for the betterment of the public schools of the city. Something must be done this year, with compulsory education coming on.

TALK AND BACK TALK

Mineola Monitor:

"As in our custom when such tragedies occur, we refrain from giving details regarding the matter, for the reason that jurors are often disqualified by reading newspaper reports of such." The above we find on setting in the Wood County Democrat the account of the recent shooting affray that took place in Quitman. Hundreds of years ago when the rules were made, it was possible, no doubt, for a man to have a trial by jury of his peers, who were ignorant of the facts surrounding his case, and as the law demands, had formed no opinion will reference to it. That was a time of no newspapers and long distances. Today jurors must be restricted, if we are to cling to the old rules, to one of two classes, either of which may permit justice to miscarry, the class that can not read and the class that does not read. Here then, in the Wood County Democrat, is an idea for newspapers, if we are to have an judicial reform, as adoption of the methods of the Democrat is in order.

Very slowly leaders of thought are coming to the conclusion that American newspaper readers are more intelligent, as jurors than the foreign product, and are giving to the news columns more and more attention and importance. The newspaper reader is bidded to be a broad-gauged man, for he gets all sides of a question and realizes that nobody's statement can be taken as absolutely authority on good and sufficient proof, for the best of men and women are sometimes mistaken not only in their opinions, but in their facts. Broad-guaged men, therefore, are the very people to whom the editor can afford to put aside and can put aside any feelings or any opinions they may have formed and replace them with opinions formed by the law and the facts. They have, through reading newspapers, become skilled in separating facts from fiction and in a measure are more judicially inclined mentally than are those who do not read newspapers, but whose heads are filled with prejudices and superstitions and wrong ideas about things.

DEATHS.

MRS. W. E. YARBOROUGH.

Mrs. Alice Yarborough, wife of Mr. W. E. Yarborough, died at 7:10 o'clock Friday morning after an illness lasting since June 20, when she was badly burned. The funeral is to be held Friday morning at 10 o'clock from the Methodist Episcopal church and will be conducted by Rev. C. E. Woodson, pastor of that church. The interment will be in Greenwood cemetery.

Mrs. Yarborough was Miss Alice Grimes, and was born December 5, 1895, in this county, in which she has always resided. Today nurses must be restricted, if we are to cling to the old rules, to one of two classes, either of which may permit justice to miscarry, the class that can not read and the class that does not read. AMUSEMENTS

"Nest of the Navy."

Manager Powell has succeeded in booking the serial picture, "Nest of the Navy," which is the latest and newest of the offerings in this line for the winter. The popularity of the "Days of Hearts" and "The Black Box," which were shown here, induced Mr. Powell to believe that Marshall people like a good continued picture, and decided that his patrons were entitled to the best, and made arrangements to show one above feature. "Nest of the Navy," is produced by the famous Pathe Freres company, who made the "Perils of Pauline" films, and the cast and photography are up-to-De Pathe standard of excellence. There is a pretty love story running throughout the picture, and as the plot is laid in the navy the whole Atlantic squadron of the United navy was utilized in making the production, which is to be shown at the Grand beginning soon.

Engages Neu Orleen Minstrels.

Manager Powell has secured the house, after some correspondence, for the night of October 5, when it is easily one of the most original of blackface comedians of the day and their branches out with a big show has during the past five years, head all other like organizations. The show can expensive one costing about $500 per day to carry, and in contracting to open the toys season of the Grand Manager Powell guaranteed the receipts to be not less than $400 for the one performance.

Bartels Grow in Favor.

The Bartels Musical Comedy Company played to a good house Wednesday night and although the bill was a repetition of a former curtain, it went over with equal effect as upon the previous presentation. The quartet won even greater applause and more recalls.

The Best for Diarrhoea.

And Arch Adams has answered at the last roll call. He has joined the dear old friends of the long ago. Now that the time and the winter age have come, Of the friends who, in the morning of life, by the scores loved one another, less than a few years ago, have preceded him to the other country, five years, and all of that happy group of boyhood friends in dear old Hanson county, who started out so nearly together into the wide, wide world, each one with different motive, important hopes, brightest visions. Sometimes wonder if those who gave their lives for the beloved Southland were more unselfish than the stay-at-homes, the unscathed through the terrible ordeal, and only contributed patient, disillusions, disappointments and the weariness of dismal failures—the indifference, the emptiness and the utter nothingness of it all.

Dear Old Arch knew in this life, and he knows now in the land of the dead, where I believe he is, that I loved him. He was worthy of the love of any man, was Arch Adams, for he was true, he was good of heart, he was just, he was pure of soul. His hand was an open one, his greeting a cordial one, his smile a blessing.

To the dear ones of his bosom left to mourn him, the sympathies of my whole being go out in sincerest tenderness. With those of the friends of this truth and young manhood, who, with travels, yet linger behind, I sorrow not as but little "hope" as but the clods of the valley, a flower from a living hand, a tear from those who loved and mourn us.

MURRAY HUDDLE'S STATEMENT

To The Messenger:

Shreveport, La., Sept. 13, 1915.

On arriving at Marshall yesterday, I read an article published in your paper last week, concerning an automobile accident taking place at Waskom, Texas. The car of Mr. Dobbs of your city, and the car occupied by myself and family collided. Both cars were damaged to the extent that it was necessary that we have them brought to Shreveport and repaired, neither car being demolished, as stated in your article.

It is also true that neither my family nor the family of Mr. Dobbs were "piled out in a heap." My version of the accident is that I was on the right hand side of the road and further turn to the right on my part was impossible, for the reason that there was an embankment, and behind this embankment a fence, while on my left was a space of fully 25 feet that was open to Mr. Dobbs' machine, but it is true that there was a log a little ahead of Mr. Dobbs' car, and apparently was going to clear our car already, but Mr. Dobbs failed to do so, and struck his front wheel on the log, and at that time veered his car away from the log bringing Mr Dobbs' car and mine together. Both cars were traveling at a speed of about 15 miles and ten miles an hour, and our cars were not damaged to any extent.

Mr. Dobbs' car was damaged in front, and the occasion for this better is that the front springs were broken. My car was damaged in the rear because of the accident, as well as the fenders and the rear axle was bent. I do not think that the article was written with any intent to misrepresent the facts, but was done in the interest of the public, and
